NORTH END OF THE COUNTY NEWS

SEBASTIAN.

Our pastor, Rev. W. A. Myers, is preaching a series of very interesting sermons this week.

A crowd of happy young people chaperoned by Mrs. Foster and Miss Singleton, went to the beach last Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hardesty left on the Sunday noon train for St. Augustine in the interest of Mrs. Hardesty's health.

"The School Debating Class" was entertained by the teacher, Miss Ella Singleton, Friday evening last at the home of Mrs. G. B. Hall. During the evening our "School Improvement Society" was organized and a most pleasant evening was spent by all.

WABASSO.

E. A. Holt is shipping quantities of fish nowadays.

School opens next Monday and parents and pupils alike are glad.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Keefer of Fort Pierce spent Sunday with friends in town.

Miss Ella M. Wigfield is to be our teacher for the coming school term and we, one and all, extend her a hearty welcome.

How to Preserve Wooden Posts.

To preserve wooden posts bore with an inch and a quarter auger from the butt of the post to a distance that will be six inches above the ground when the post shall be set. Then char over a good fire for a quarter of an hour, so as to drive all moisture out of the heart of the butt through the hole bored; fill the hole with boiling coal tar and drive in a well fitted plug, which will act as a hydraulic ram and force the tar into the hot bores of the wood, which will become thoroughly creosoted and last sound for twenty years in place of four, as in ordinary cases. A four inch post may have one hole in its center; six inch, two, side by side; eight inch, three; twelve inch, four. Posts which are already in the ground may be bored diagonally, filled with hot tar in the dry summer time, plugged up and repainted. Sleeper posts for floor joists should be treated in this manner, and then their bases surrounded with a cup of puddled clay, into which pour hot coal tar. Posts thus treated cannot decay.

New Year in Japan.

As early as Dec. 13 a special house cleaning prepares the way in Japan for the New Year festival, and as the year closes the house fronts are bright with decorative emblems. The whole week, which includes New Year's day, is a continuous holiday, and on fine days when the sun shines the scene in the streets is most animated. Shop fronts are gay with a goodly display of toys and seasonable presents, all are in the best of spirits, the children are busily at play with kites and battle-doors, and every one is doing his or her utmost to make things hum. In higher circles the mikado receives the civil and military officials, who in former days appeared in gorgeous uniforms and richly embroidered dress, but since 1872, when the Gregorian calendar was introduced, European costume has been worn and the festival has been much less picturesque.

Antiquity of the Umbrella.

No one knows whether the umbrella was originally used as a defense against rain or a screen from the sun, but it seems probable that the first umbrellas were sunshades. In countries where very little clothing is worn rain does not make much difference, but the sun is a power. Why shouldn't the palm leaf be the first sunshade, with its ribs and handles to order? It hints at the umbrella as well as the fan. Travelers among the Ainos of Japan often make temporary sunshades of gigantic dock leaves, which are sometimes six feet high, large enough for an account of Gulliver. The umbrella has a very great antiquity.
The word itself means a "little shadow," showing that it was named for its protection from the sun in this case. Horace says, "Among the military standards the sun beholds an Egyptian canopy."—Irish Times.

The Shadows.

Were a man's sorrows and disquietudes summed up at the end of his life it would generally be found that he had suffered more from the apprehension of such evils as never happened to him than from those evils which had really befallen him.

At the Club.

"Carry any life insurance?"
"Yes, $10,000 in favor of my wife."
"Should think you'd be ashamed to look her in the face."
"What for?"
"For living. What excuse do you give her?"

FORT DRUM.

Mrs. M. E. Knight was in Alger last Friday, attending a sick friend.

G. W. Drawdy made a short business trip to Bassenger last Thursday.

J. W. and R. W. Knight arrived here Friday morning, bringing a nice stock of groceries for G. W. Drawdy, Jr.

The school seems to be getting along nicely. Every one likes the teacher and the patrons express their entire satisfaction.

U. S. Surveyor Hendrix has been camping near here for several days.
He has been doing a lot of surveying and will remain some time.

J. M. Lee and John F. Parker and their families went out camping a few days last week, attending to their herd of live stock. They report a pleasant trip.

The stock owners here have been very busy the past week cow hunting.
This is their last hunt until spring.
They report plenty of water on the ground.

J. W. Knight and G. W. Drawdy, while out riding Wednesday afternoon, surprised an eight foot alligator in the edge of a swamp, in water two or three feet deep. They fired at it with a shot gun, and apparently killed it, but when they caught it by the nose, oh, my, you should have seen it throw the water! Another well directed shot put an end to its struggles, and they were able to drag it to the shore.

Revolting Burial Customs.

Of Tibetan burial customs, including the devouring of the corpse by dogs and vultures, Edward Candler, the author of "The Unveiling of Lassa," writes: "When a Tibetan dies he is left three days in his chamber, and a slit is made in his skull to let his soul pass out. Then he is rolled into a ball, wrapped in a sack or silk if he is rich, packed into a jar or basket and carried along to the music of conch shells to the ceremonial stone. Here a lama takes the corpse out of its vessel and wrappings and lays it face downward on a large flat slab, and the pensioners (dogs and vultures) prowl or hop round waiting for their dole.

"They are quite tame. The lamas stand a little way apart and see that strict etiquette is observed during the entertainment. The carver begins at the ankle and cuts upward, throwing little strips of flesh to the guests. The bones he throws to a second attendant, who pounds them up with a heavy stone."

A Doctor's Dilemma.

Among the papers of R. H. Stoddard that Ripley Hitchcock edited there is a letter which Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet-physician, is said to have received. This letter was written many years ago by an ignorant country practitioner, and it is interesting because it shows the low level to which, in the early part of the last century, it was possible for medical education to fall.
The letter, verbatim, follows:

Dear dock I have a pashunt whose physical sinns shoze that the winpipe is ulcerated of and his lung hav dropped into his stumick. He is unabel to swaller and I fear his stumick toohe is gone. I have giv him everything without effeck his Father is wealthy honble and influenshul. He is an active member of the M. E. church and God noes I don't want too loose him wot shall I do?
